Alex and the bull

Last summer Mr and Mrs Short took their two sons, Jack and Alex, to the countryside for a picnic. It was a lovely sunny day.

The family found a large field and sat down on the grass. They put their picnic on a big red blanket on the grass. They were hungry, so they ate their sandwiches quickly. Then they had some biscuits and drank some orange juice.

When Dad was putting their rubbish into the bin, he heard a loud noise. 'Be careful!' he shouted. 'It's a bull.' The bull was very angry and it was coming after them.

The family didn't know what to do. Jack, the older boy, climbed up a tree. Dad hid behind the rubbish bin. Mum ran across the field. But where was little Alex? They couldn't see him. But Alex was hiding under the red blanket. And now the angry bull was near him.

Suddenly Alex moved a little bit. The bull couldn't see Alex's head, his arms or legs. He only saw that the red blanket was moving. The bull was really scared and ran away. Everyone was safe.

'Well done, Alex!' said Dad. 'You saved us. Did you know that bulls don't like the colour red?' Alex didn't know. But he knows now!
